For each individual to lead a life of CHOICE!

Year in Review
April 2015 - March 2016
Vision
Centre for Civil Society advances social change through public policy. Our work in education, livelihood, and policy training promotes choice and accountability across private and public sectors. To translate policy into practice, we engage with policy and opinion leaders through research, pilot projects and advocacy.

Mission
Centre for Civil Society envisions a world where each individual leads a life of choice in personal, economic and political spheres and every institution is accountable.

Chairman’s Message

One of our key programs this year was the Vikalp Skill Voucher pilot, in keeping with the Prime Minister’s Skill India program. In 2015-16 we expanded the program to impact 1,200 youth with a 65% placement rate. The three-year pilot has demonstrated phenomenal results - 15 training providers, 23 empanelled courses, 5,100 footfalls at 55 career awareness melas (fests), a total of 2,000 youth trained, average dropout rates as low as 9.5% and an average salary of Rs 9,566. We are grateful to our partners, Michael and Susan Dell Foundation, Government of Maharashtra, Tata Motors and HDFC Bank. We also moved to the advocacy phase and published an implementation toolkit to serve as a “how to guide” for agencies willing to replicate the model. This was launched by the Principal Secretary, Department of Welfare-SC/ST/Minority Communities, Government of Delhi. CCS was invited by the Rajasthan Government to explore the possibility of replicating the components of Vikalp in its skill development programs.

Among our other policy wins were the Delhi government adopting our centralised lottery idea for the 25% reservations under the RTE Act, the UP Government providing funding for uniforms and textbooks for the kids covered by this 25% reservation, the Rajasthan High Court vindicating our stand that there will be no more evictions of street entrepreneurs and the acceptance of two of our recommendations on contract enforcement by the Department of Industry Policy and Promotion.

CCS continued to do well in the annual rankings of think tanks by the University of Pennsylvania and, at #50, was the only Indian think tank in the top 100 global list. Our School Voucher for Girls pilot in Delhi and our Jeevika Livelihood Campaign in Rajasthan were described in detail in Meera Mitra’s book ‘Breaking Through: India’s Stories of Beating the Odds on Poverty’. Nandan Nilekani and Viral Shah, in their book ‘Rebooting India – Realizing a Billion Aspirations’, recommended CCS’ voucher idea to ensure inclusive education in India.

Finally, we continued to push the ideas of competition, choice and market-based policies. We launched a portal “India before 91”, held a conference to celebrate the work of S V Raju and partnered with Cato Institute and Livemint.com for Indianliberals.in. 300 students and 28 journalists graduated from our public policy courses and our Freedom Caravan covered 2,380 students across 20 colleges this year. We’ve successfully entered the formal curriculum of St Xavier’s, Mumbai, National Law School, Bangalore and Pandit Dindayal Petroleum Institute, Gandhinagar where we offered 3-4 credit courses engaging over 60 students.

On behalf of the CCS team, I would like to thank all our donors, partners (within the government and private sector), students, alumni and well-wishers for all their support.

Luis Miranda
Chairman

YEAR IN REVIEW 2015-16 3
President’s Message

What are the three things that make me proud of being at CCS? Chairman Luis Miranda has talked about the work achievements of CCS during the year; let’s focus on the rest of CCS and the environs in which it functions.

We evolved and deepened a collaborative leadership model of governance. We have been thinking about my succession plan and have been trying different models, including hiring a COO from outside or promoting one from inside. Through these experiences and dialogues, what evolved as an effective governance model is that of collaborative leadership: all five department heads and I make up the Management Group (MG) and all organizational decisions are taken by the MG. Moreover, we are moving towards that of collaborative leadership: all five department heads and I make up the Management Group (MG) and all organizational decisions are taken by the MG. Moreover, we are moving towards each department developing an ‘autonomy contract’ with me that extends the areas of autonomy with clear performance, including fund raising targets.

I was actually abroad during our flagship education conference, School Choice National Conference in December. Board members Amit Kaushik, Gurcharan Das, Luis Miranda and Premila Nazareth have actively participated in these events and encouraged them to be the leaders of their programs. CCS and I are truly blessed to have such a great leadership team and the Board.

I am sure you have noticed the re-articulation of the CCS purpose/vision statement: Each individual leads a life of choice in personal, economic and political spheres and every institution is accountable. It does not say free enterprise or free markets, capitalism or laissez faire, not even limited government, individual rights, rule of law—the terms that are commonly used to describe liberal or libertarian think tanks around the world. We have come to view those ideas as means to the goal of individual choice and institutional accountability which remains our core purpose.

The mission statement talks about promoting choice and accountability across public and private sectors in the areas of our focus through research, pilot projects, and advocacy. The areas of focus are in two buckets—policy domains and policy training. The policy domains that we currently focus on are education and livelihoods, and policy training includes all the work of CCS Academy (policy courses, internships, colloquia and conferences). A concise way to work of CCS Academy (policy courses, internships, colloquia and conferences). A concise way to work of CCS Academy (policy courses, internships, colloquia and conferences).

Each individual leads a life of choice in personal, economic and political spheres and every institution is accountable.

I am particularly grateful to the five department heads for taking this journey together: Amit Chandra (Advocacy), Baishali Bomjan (Development & Strategy), Manoj Mathew (Operations & Outreach), Rohan Joshi (Research) and Samta Arora (Academy). They have represented CCS at many national and international forums. They have together made it possible for me to be just a regular participant in all the major public events of CCS; and mindset/ideas change. Through research, pilot projects and advocacy, we work on specific policy change and through Academy programs, we work on ideas change. Thanks to the support of Nandan Nilekani, Academy is now the biggest team at CCS—India’s ideas shall change.

This clarity of the vision and mission has been instrumental in shaping our overall strategy as well as annual goals. The challenge for a think tank is to find a right balance between planned work and on-demand work. If it leans too much towards planned work then it would not be able to take advantage of changes in governments and their priorities and the changes in public opinion and discourse. If it focuses too much on responding to extant circumstances, then it runs the danger of losing its focus on its core purpose. We are proud that we have been able to find a good balance between inspiration and strategy and between spontaneity and predictability. Though of course, this is always a work in progress.

We hope you are as proud of our achievements as we are—they have been made possible only with your continued support. Our sincere gratitude for putting your confidence in CCS to advance social change through public policy.

May the year bring each individual a life of CHOICE!

Vikalp - Skill Voucher Model Adopted in Central and State Government Schemes

MAHARASHTRA

Babasaheb Ambedkar Research and Training Institute (BARTI) invited CCS to join its PMU to provide inputs on overall strategy forskill development under the Department of Social Justice and Special Assistance, Government of Maharashtra. BARTI has picked up many elements from Vikalp model to introduce the same in other non-Vikalp skill development programs of the department. Some key design elements picked up are:

• Centralized Facilitation of Students: Online portal to share information on skilling programs and to manage ongoing application process for prospective trainees from all over Maharashtra

• Performance - Linked Payments to Training Providers: Introduced a phased payment system to include outcome parameters such as training completion, certification, placements and tracking including trainee feedback as one of the parameters for payment to training providers

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

The Ministry of Skill Development and Entrepreneurship introduced the idea of Skill Gift Cards in July 2016 in collaboration with the Central Bank of India. CCS was invited along with National Skills Development Corporation (NSDC), Associated Chambers of Commerce of India (ASSOCHAM), Michael and Susan Dell Foundation (MSDF), Central Bank and select industry representatives to brainstorm on the idea of Skill Gift Cards. Eventually however, the program was put on hold and not rolled out as envisaged on pilot basis in select geographies.
Delhi Government adopts CCS’s Centralised Lottery Idea for 25% EWS Admissions under RTE Act

3 key concerns unique to CCS’ recommendations on the implementation of the RTE Act are highlighted in the circular issued by the Delhi Government on the admission of EWS category students:

• Specification of the income limit for EWS at Rs. 1 lakh: Most states are yet to define such an income criteria for identifying EWS, which CCS regards crucial to ensuring admissions to ‘truly deserving’ candidates.

• Definition of ‘disadvantaged group’: The circular clearly defines and delimits the category, and therefore makes it easier for schools to verify claims.

• Relaxation of the neighbourhood criteria: CCS considers the relaxation of the neighbourhood criteria to be a significant game-changer in the way forward, especially if the 25% reservation is to be implemented along the lines of a voucher system.

Uttar Pradesh Reimbursements for 25% Reservations

Following our colloquium on Education: Philosophy, Policy and Practice, CCS was invited to co-host a roundtable on the implementation of the RTE Act in Uttar Pradesh. The roundtable, held in Lucknow concluded with two key recommendations for fostering the implementation of the RTE in its true spirit:

a. Revising the amount of reimbursements made to schools for the 25% reservations under section 12 (1) (c) of the act and,

b. Creating a scientific formula for calculating the reimbursement amount.

The government of Uttar Pradesh had earlier fixed the reimbursement amount to INR 450 per pupil per month. Following the roundtable and the recommendations by CCS however, the Government has approved supplementary reimbursements of INR 400 for uniforms and a further INR 150 for textbooks in addition to the base amount of INR 450. The Government Order in this regard is underway.
Protecting Livelihood Freedom of Street Entrepreneurs

We filed a petition in the Rajasthan High Court to stop eviction of street vendors and to implement the Street Vendors Act 2014. The Rajasthan High Court ruled in favor of the street vendors putting a stay on eviction and asked the state government to prepare a comprehensive plan regarding street vending in the state. However, the judgment had one technical flaw as it noted that the Central Act was not notified specifically for the state of Rajasthan and although the state law also does not allow it, they continued eviction. We filed a petition at the Supreme Court requesting clarification that the Central Act be applicable to all states. The Court subsequently asked Jaipur Municipal Corporation to hold a meeting with aggrieved parties and to prepare an action plan, which incorporates several ideas by CCS and submit it to the Court. The meeting report was presented to the High Court which unequivocally stated that there would be no more evictions on the field and that status quo shall be maintained.

Central Government picks two key Recommendations on Contract Enforcement

In 2015, we produced two research papers titled ‘Improving Contract Enforcement Rank for India’ and ‘Criminalising Cheque Bounce Cases’, and two policy briefs titled ‘Improving Contract Enforceability in India’ and ‘Pecuniary Jurisdiction’. Two key recommendations were picked by the Department of Industrial Policy and Promotion (DIPP) - merging process fee and court fee, and issuing digitally signed judgments online. These were included in the 2016 Business Action Plan for the states by the DIPP.
Best Practices in the Regulation of Private Education

In India, reforms in the regulation of private schools have been debated on the basis of universalizing access to education while recognizing the increasing role of private sector in enabling that access, particularly for the poor. However, the experience so far has been that the extant regulations create entry and exit barriers in the provision of education by entrepreneurs thereby reducing competition and keeping the cost of education high. It is in this context that CCS undertook a comprehensive research study to better understand how governments in other parts of the world leverage private investments in education to foster improved access and outcomes for the benefits of the society in general. This study examines three cases of best practices in the regulation of private enterprise in education from around the world:

1. Regulation of Hagwon / supplemental education centers in South Korea,
2. Per-child funding model in the Netherlands, and

The New Education Policy (NEP) blueprint creates a detailed framework for policy in India that will improve choice in education, provide autonomy for education institutions and foster community-based innovations. The policy blueprint urges policymakers to consider the current status of education in India that points to increased private expenditure on education across income groups and overall low levels of learning outcomes while formulating the New Education Policy.

The document identifies three major challenges that the new policy should address:

1. Missing motivation for performance in Government schools,
2. Low economic efficiency of public expenditure in education, and
3. Expanding private schools amid an uncertain and counterproductive regulatory framework.

The NEP policy blueprint envisions an education system that is pillared by five basic principles:

- Fund Students, Not Schools
- Promote Autonomy, Not Control
- Track Outcomes, Not Inputs
- Reward Performance, Not Compliance
- Encourage Innovation, Not Uniformity

The policy blueprint suggests multiple interconnected reforms in detail based on evidence from around the world that would increase school choice by restructuring current inefficient funding models and instituting accountability systems based on performance.

A Study of Private School Regulation in Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan

The study focuses on existing legislation governing private schools in two of the largest states in India – Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan. An initial stakeholder analysis was conducted through interviews with school owners in Delhi to develop a broad outline of the processes involved in starting and running a school. Based on the initial stakeholder analysis, a detailed matrix of the processes involved and the laws that govern these processes was developed. The matrix was used to identify and categorize existing legislation governing private schools in UP and Rajasthan with support from primary data obtained through interviews with private school owners from the two states. Representatives of the education department in both states were interviewed regarding the implementation details and local government rationale behind the laws that were identified to be governing the operation of private schools.
This research paper examines the implementation of the Forest Rights Act 2006 in the context of furthering access to bamboo as a minor forest produce to forest dwelling communities in Mendha Lekha village of Gadchiroli district in Maharashtra and Jamguda village of Kalahandi, Orissa. The study documents the issues faced by the villagers in claiming community forest rights and in harvesting and sale of bamboo, along with the business practices adopted by both the villages.

Regulatory Barriers to Micro, Small & Medium Enterprises (MSMEs)

This paper studies the overall effect of the business, policy, and legal/regulatory environment on the growth of MSMEs, and finds significant ‘over-legislation’ both at the central and state level, coupled with the scattered nature of regulations resulting in high entry barriers, overwhelming tax and labour compliances, and lack of a defined exit process. It concludes with a set of policy recommendations to improve the situation, and correspondingly India’s rank in the Ease of Doing Business Index.

Property Rights of Street Vendors

This study examines the evolution of property rights for Street Vendors in India, tracing the numerous judgments of the Supreme Court and High Court to recognize their rights and shape a statutory regime. It finds that although the situation improved with respect to the recognition of their rights, a lot remains to be done.

Model Rules on Implementation of Street Vendors Act (SVA) 2014

We created a document outlining rules for implementation of SVA and submitted it to the Ministry of Housing and Urban Poverty Alleviation, GOI and to the State Urban Development Ministries of Rajasthan and Delhi. You will find the rules here and our proposed amendments to the Delhi government rules here.

New Public Management
Liberty & Society Series 9

This monograph by Parth J Shah, President, CCS explores how principles of business management can be applied to the field of public administration, thereby increasing accountability, transparency and efficiency in government functioning. It explores the core principles of NPM and argues that these principles, when well-applied, help create a system where the public sector functions more efficiently and is accountable to the people.

UnpackED: The Black Box of Indian School Education Reform Launched

India’s educational quandary has been a subject of significant public debate over the last decade, particularly in the wake of the RTE Act, burgeoning private sector and the dwindling learning outcomes amongst its students. There has also been significant debate on, and a diversification of, interventions that have in the recent past, attempted to address or remedy this persisting crisis. Authored by Karthik Dinne, a CCS graduate, UnpackED: The Black Box of Indian School Education presents a comprehensive overview of these many dialogues and interventions, highlighting the inefficacy and inadequacy of state capacity as the critical constraint to effective reform in education in the country. The book was launched at our annual School Choice National conference in December 2015.

IndianLiberals.in is a digital archive of Indian liberal works. This year, as part of our ongoing efforts to source and share rare materials that document our country’s rich liberal tradition, we digitized 15,000 pages including material in Marathi. We also uploaded 10 videos: interviews with some of the leading liberal voices in the country – D R Pendse, Jagdish Bhagwati and Deepak Lal and hosted four talks in Delhi and Pune on the ‘Indian Liberal Tradition’ and ‘India’s Experiences with Central Planning’ as part of our larger outreach.

We have also collaborated with two leading online publications: ‘Libertarianism.org’ - Cato Institute’s online library, and ‘Mint on Sunday’, the weekend edition of Livemint.com to syndicate material from our portal on a monthly and fortnightly basis respectively.

Repeal Laws: Delhi and Maharashtra

Post Phase I of the ‘Repeal of Laws’ project wherein of the 100 central laws suggested by us, 23 were repealed, we rolled out Phase II of the project identifying 30 laws for Delhi and 25 laws for Maharashtra. These laws were identified on the basis of them being obsolete and redundant, having outlived their purpose, or posing an impediment to material growth and/or development or having been subsumed by a subsequent legislation.

Pursuant to the research and drafting of the report, we contacted the local governments of the two states. For Maharashtra, of the 25 laws that we suggested for repeal, 19 were instantly agreed upon by the principal secretary with the promise that the same will be taken up in the coming assembly.

For Delhi, we had a meeting with the Aam Aadmi Party - the ruling party in state government who recommended that we also engage with the home ministry as most of the laws fall under the central government jurisdiction.

The Vikalp Skill Voucher Pilot benefitted 700 beneficiaries with 62% placement rate in 2014 - 15. To further strengthen the aim of demonstrating measurable impact of the voucher model in the skilling ecosystem, our commitment grew stronger for 2015 - 16. The project impacted 1200 beneficiaries with 65% placement rate. The three - year pilot has demonstrated phenomenal results - 15 Training Providers, 23 empanelled courses, 5100 footfalls at 55 career awareness melas, a total of 2000 youth trained, with an average dropout rate as low as 9.5% and an average salary of Rs 9,566.

An implementation toolkit which serves as a “how to guide” for agencies willing to replicate the model has been developed and was launched by the Pr. Secretary, Department of Welfare - SC / ST / Minority communities, Government of Delhi on 4 April. The event saw participation of over 70 key stakeholders from government agencies, and multilateral and consulting organizations working in the skilling space.

Inclusion model for 25% reservation under RTE established with 150 Economically Weaker Section Students in two schools in Delhi

We completed a two year pilot, PATANG building an effective implementation model for the academic and social inclusion of economically weaker section students admitted under RTE section 12(1)(c) in two schools in Delhi. This pilot, in partnership with Tech Mahindra Foundation, established Patang centres in two schools catering to 150 EWS students in standards 1-5.

Key highlights included conducting academic assessments for the 25% (EWS) and 75% (Non-EWS) student groups, enabling us to analyse learning levels of both groups and gauge the impact of our project; collaborating with Amnesty International to hold combined workshops for all school and Patang teachers; holding 9 parent workshops; facilitating 3 teacher training forums along with sustained ongoing mentoring; and interacting with 35 organisations over the year, for knowledge exchange, partnering and curriculum/training support. Over the last two years Patang has seen a visible change in the two intervention schools in terms of positive attitudinal change of teachers, better academic performance of students, more proactive and supportive school management, and increased awareness among parents. An implementation toolkit is currently underway. The toolkit will be disseminated among key stakeholders and the government for adoption of the model and scale.

12 Members of Parliament engaged with CCS ideas

Meenakshi Lekhi, MP in the Lok Sabha from New Delhi constituency, National Spokesperson of Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and Supreme Court lawyer attended two programs and took questions on Ease of Doing Business in India from us to raise in parliament sessions.

Kirron Kher, Member of Parliament from Chandigarh constituency made a strong case for budget private schools in the parliament session and highlighted school closure under the Right to Education Act as a major threat to providing millions of poor children affordable education of their choice.

Gaurav Gogoi, politician from Indian National Congress Party in Assam also made a speech in the parliament in support of budget private schools.

Vijay Goel, former BJP Delhi-unit President and politician made a speech on pecuniary jurisdiction and raised a question on street vending in support of our work in the sector during the parliament session.

Mahesh Giri, social activist and member of Bharatiya Janata Party went through our presentation on education reforms and forwarded it to MHRD Minister Smriti Irani for her consideration.

Udit Raj, Lok Sabha MP, representing the North-west Delhi constituency; Rajeev Chandra Shekhar, Rajya Sabha MP; Baijayant J Panda, Lok Sabha MP; Anu Aga, Rajya Sabha MP; Vinod Kumar, Advocate and MP; Derek O Brian, television personality and MP for All India Trinamool Congress, and Shashi Tharoor, MP and former diplomat participated in our policy roundtables, conferences and leadership summit this year.

Building momentum for the New Education Policy

In November - December 2015 we brought together 30 policy makers and education experts during two roundtables organized jointly with CABE member Anirban Ganguli’s Syama Prasad Mookerjee Research Foundation and Brookings Institute in Delhi. A joint letter and recommendations have been submitted to the MHRD Minister.

In February 2016, 1500 school owners of our National Independent Schools Alliance (NISA) participated in a demonstration at Jantar Mantar, New Delhi and submitted a Charter of Demands to the Prime Minister’s Office and MHRD Minister to incorporate in the NEP draft. NISA also made a presentation to the NEP drafting committee set up by MHRD as well as met with the MHRD Minister Smriti Irani in the state of Telengana and submitted our reform ideas.

CCS participated in eight state level consultations as well as made a presentation to the drafting committee in Delhi.

2380 Students across 20 colleges discuss ‘Why is India Poor’?

FREEDOM CARAVAN visited 20 colleges this year, reaching out to 2,380 students across Delhi, Mumbai and Pune.

Among the colleges visited, were Hansraj College, BML Munjal University, Jai Hind College, NMIMS, and Government Law College. The talks, focusing on the theme ‘Why is India Poor?’ were delivered by Amit Varma, two-time winner of the Bastiat Prize for Journalism and Prashant Narang of iJustice, along with the members of the CCS Academy team.

Students also took our World’s Smallest Political Quiz to map where they stood on political ideology. In both Mumbai and Delhi, over 50% of the students were centrist in their leanings. Even more striking was the fact that a large percentage of students (30% in Mumbai and 35% in Delhi) were left-leaning.
Public policy was an area unventured into earlier, but after these 4 days of intensive sets of discussions, games, documentaries and talks, I’ve emerged with a new perspective on policies for the public & the direction they might be thought about in. The idea of using games as analogies to public policy formulation – FASCINATING! The concept of having the government help provision instead of interference in production, or producing themselves is also completely new and interesting.

The discussions helped me to challenge preconceived notions about addressing socially, politically and economically relevant issues. ipolicy ideology places innovative approaches to addressing these issues at the forefront. Although I fell that certain visions of ipolicy are idealistic; still thinking with a liberal framework is also a sound starting point for bringing about lasting social change.

I don’t know why I attended this workshop as I was not free market supporter. But I was curious to know what arguments the ‘liberals’ are going to put forth. Generally I do not like to waste my time discussing privatization and free market. During workshop, sessions started with surprise, continued with curiosity and ended with agreement.

A whole new side of the coin was flashed in front of me. A new approach, a liberal one and a desire to see beyond the obvious, question govt policies, conjectures and understand nonprofit institutions and communities. Literally, I have learned to unlearn and grasp policy making in a better way. Thank you.

David Friedman’s India Tour

David Friedman – a libertarian theorist, legal scholar, physicist, and one of the world’s most eloquent economists, visited India in the month of June. To honour his contributions and foster a vibrant dialogue on the Indian contemporary, we organised a series of events in Delhi, Mumbai and Bangalore in partnership with FICCI, BPAC, UChicago and IIM, Bangalore. The events brought together dignitaries and intellectuals for dialogue and relationship-building. We also organized two public talks – on ‘Law without the State’ at the University of Chicago Centre in Delhi, and on ‘Digital Content, Intellectual Property, and Innovation’ at IIM, Bangalore – with a total outreach of over 500 individuals from the academia, media, corporate community, youth and civil society.

First Law & Liberty Conference in India

CCS in collaboration with the Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies, Jindal Global Law School (JGLS) and Jindal School of Government and Public Policy (JSGP) hosted a two-day international conference on ‘Law and Liberty’ at the O. P. Jindal Global University on 18-19 September.

Dr. C. Raj Kumar, Vice Chancellor, O. P. Jindal Global University (JGU); Prof. Michael Davis, Distinguished Visiting Professor, JGLS & Professor, Faculty of Law, University of Hong Kong; Shruti Rajgopalan, Asst. Prof of Economics, State University of New York; Madhavi Divan, Advocate, Supreme Court of India; Shubho Roy from the National Institute for Public Finance and Policy; Arghya Sengupta, Director of Vidhi Centre for Law and Policy; Prof. James Huffman, Erskine Wood Sr. Professor of Law, Lewis and Clarke Law School; Prof. James Kelly, President of the Solidarity Center for Law and Justice, USA were among the 16 speakers featured during the conference.

For more details on the conference, please see: Media Coverage | Photos on Facebook | Conference Videos.
In partnership with the Friedrich Naumann Foundation, we hosted an academic conference, ‘Liberalism in India–Past, Present and Future’ on 20 November 2015 in New Delhi. Shashi Tharoor, Indian politician and public intellectual, delivered the keynote address at the conference which saw the participation of over 150 delegates including leading opinion makers, political party members, think tank and NGO leaders, corporates, scholars, researchers and students. The conference was held to honor S V Raju, Secretary of Swatantra Party and President of Indian Liberal Group who passed away earlier in 2015. Seven authors including Seetha, Senior Journalist, Surjit Bhalla, Chairman & MD of Oxus Investments, R Jagannathan, Editor-in-Chief, Firstpost, Parth J Shah, President, CCS, Barun Mitra, Founder & Director, Liberty Institute, J P Narayan, Founder, Lok Satta Party, Jerry Rao, ex-CEO, MPhasis, and Nitin Pai, Founder, Takshashila, presented their papers. The papers presented at the conference will be published as a festschrift in May 2016.

The 12th Jeevika: Asia Livelihood Documentary Festival witnessed screening of 25 documentaries from 30 October - 1 November at Siri Fort Auditorium, New Delhi.

With 16 international productions & 7 student documentaries, the Festival this year not only received entries from Asia but also from other parts of the world, including Europe, the United States of America, Burma, Myanmar & China. The festival indeed saw global participation and reach—a prime highlight of the event. 6 documentaries curated by Al Jazeera were also screened at the Festival.

Centre for Civil Society also launched ‘EduDoc | Stories of Edupreneurs’, a new initiative under Jeevika. EduDoc is conceptualized as an international short film competition that attempts to highlight stories of and from entrepreneurs in education. EduDoc received 22 entries, out of which one chosen documentary was screened at the 12th Jeevika Festival.

These screenings were followed by three panel discussions on the concerns of ‘Law, Liberty & Livelihood’, ‘Repeal Laws: Clean India, Clean Statutes’ and on ‘Ease of Doing Business’. Shailaja Chandra, policy analyst and former Chief Secretary of Government of Delhi; Raghav Chadha, spokesperson for Aam Aadmi Party; Gopal Krishna Agarwal, National Spokesperson of BJP and Anil Khattar, Chairman of SNK Corp. were some of the panelists.

A dedicated website on Ease of Doing Business (www.easeofdoingbusiness.org) was also launched during the festival.

The winners of the 12th Jeevika festival can be accessed here.

Key Highlights of the Festival

The festival received more than 200 media mentions in print, radio and television. You can access the media citations here.

The festival was also marked for the controversy surrounding ‘Caste on the Menu Card’, a film that sought to bring forth concerns of social inclusion/exclusion through food as a site and practice of caste. The film eventually could not be screened at the festival because it failed to secure an exemption from the certification process.

25 other documentaries that explored critical socio-economic concerns were screened as a part of the festival.
School Choice National Conference 2015

The 7th annual School Choice National Conference was held on 19 December 2015. The conference brought to the forefront critical contemporary concerns in education—particularly regarding learning outcomes, the ‘Right to Education’ and the ‘Right to Learning’, and school autonomy, making robust recommendations for the New Education Policy. The conference was facilitated by 19 speakers as panelists in 4 core thematic sessions. The event drew 250 participants working in the field of education, including educationists, policy-analysts, school principals, teachers, researchers along with journalists and NGO leaders. The conference was streamed live, watched by an online audience of more than 100 people on the same day. The event also made real-time social media updates using #SCNC2015 giving an opportunity to those not present at the venue to participate in discussions and debates as they progressed in the conference. Professor Kamal Sharma, Professor Geeta Gandhi Kingdon, Ms. Ekta Sodha, Ms. Premila Nazareth Satyanand and Amitav Viramani were few of the panelists.

India before 91
Launched

Almost half of India is born after the 1991 economic reforms. To make sure that they understand the lessons of history, on the 25th anniversary of the reforms, we launched a project to bring to light human interest stories from across the country highlighting life under the license raj, as well as the crucial role that liberalization played in improving the lives of our people. The reforms were proof of the acceptance of the value of economic freedom, whose importance we need to continue to advocate. This research seeks to provide a greater understanding of the long-term impact of liberal policy reforms as well as the value that open markets have and continue to bring into our lives in contemporary times. The event was organized in partnership with FICCI and Jairam Ramesh was our keynote speaker at the launch ceremony which drew participation from over 120 individuals.

CCS IN GOVERNMENT EDUCATION TASKFORCE IN TWO STATES

by the Government of Karnataka to engage experts in policy definition and innovative knowledge interventions for various problems of development and governance. KJA has decided to undertake a policy formulation exercise to develop a holistic and all-encompassing policy for forward-looking and futuristic education – encompassing school, college, and professional-level education along with research and innovation development.

The task group also came up with a draft framework for the education policy which has been submitted to the government with the following ideas:

- Private schools can co-exist and equally contribute in the provisioning of education, thus enhancing competition and choice for the future student
- Teachers must be selected as per qualification standards and on merit
- Existing colleges and universities need to take the lead in rolling out skill development courses and spelling out pathways into general education
- Adoption of technology in higher education has to be maximized

After 18 years of conducting educational and outreach programs, seminars and courses in liberal public policy for youth in India, CCS entered the formal curriculum of three leading universities - National Law School, Bangalore, St Xavier’s, Mumbai and National University of Juridical Sciences, to offer three to four credit-based courses with 30 to 40 hours academic training engaging over 60 students.

Faculty for the course included Prashant Narang, Lead, iJustice; Shubho Roy, Legal Consultant, National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi; Nikhil Mehra, Advocate, Supreme Court of India and the High Court of Delhi. Jerry Johnson, Corporate Communication Partner, Rediffusion Y&R; Luis Miranda, Former Chairman, IDFC Private Equity; Shreekant Gupta, Professor, Department of Economics, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi and Adjunct Professor, LKY School of Public Policy, Singapore; Madhusudan Raj, Assistant Professor of Economics at Veer Narmad South Gujarat University specialising in Austrian Economics; Nimesh Mehta, Founder, Rockmetric - a user analytics firm, and Parth J Shah, President, CCS.

The sub-committee envisaged four key intervention areas: child focused learning and guidance; head of school development; teacher coaching and capacity building; governance, transparency and performance management.

On 13 April 2016, Government of Delhi launched a program to upgrade 54 government schools on a pilot basis. Some suggestions made by the DDC Education Task Force such as the idea that school principals can lead the school development process are included in this pilot.

Accolades & Recognition

We were featured in sociologist Meera Mitra’s recent book ‘BREAKING THROUGH: India’s Stories of Beating the Odds on Poverty’. The book contains “individual, representational stories of innovation, endeavour, struggle and ‘success’” and has dedicated chapters on our School Vouchers for Girls Pilot (Delhi) and Jeevika Livelihood Campaign (Rajasthan).

Technocrat Nandan Nilekani, in ‘Rebooting India–Realizing a Billion Aspirations’, his latest book with co-authored with Viral Shah, suggests CCS’ voucher idea to ensure inclusive education in India.

CCS was ranked 50 worldwide by the annual study conducted by the Think Tanks and Civil Society Program at the University of Pennsylvania in 2015. We are the only Indian think tank in the top 100 globally.

Partners

All partners are crucial to CCS’ success. We are grateful for your continued support to help advance our mission of social change through public policy.
